Women Can't Change Husbands' Habits

"But They Should Not Be Discouraged Over Neglect—Wives Should Face the Truth and Seek Their Own Amusement."—By Dorothy Drake.

IN the course of a year I get thousands of letters from unhappy wives complaining that their husbands neglect them, or that their husbands will never take them to any place of amusement, that their husbands are miserably and stingy to them.

In novels a husband sometimes is led by his wife's gentleness and angelic patience to turn over a new leaf, and from having been a concatenation of domestic virtues, but if any such metamorphosis ever took place in real life, I can only say that I have never been privileged to behold it.

As a general working proposition a wife may take it that what her husband is going to be to the end of the chapter, only more so as the years go by. If he is kind and tender, and considerate he will be kinder, and kinder, and more considerate as they go down the hill together, because big souls grow with age. If a man is mean, and selfish, and stingy, and tyrannical, he will grow meaner, and more selfish, and stingy, and more tyrannical as he grows old because little souls narrow, and warp, and grow bitter with age.

If a man neglects his wife he does so because he is tired of her, and she bores him. If he doesn't want to take her out with him to any place of amusement it is because he has a better time without her. If he is penurious with her it is because he wants to save his money for himself. These are blunt and brutal facts, but they are facts. Furthermore, there is not one blessed thing that a woman can do to alter them.

The only remedy for the situation is to face it fairly and squarely and for women to go to work to make over their own lives, which can be done, instead of trying to make over their husbands, which cannot be done.

For instance, why should a woman rend the air with her wails because her husband never wants to take her out to any place of amusement with him? Why doesn't she just accept the truth that he doesn't enjoy her society and get up and hunt up some amusement on her own account?

If he won't take her to a restaurant to dinner and she yearns for the shaded lights, the gorgeously dressed women, the artificial palms and the music of cafe life, she can find a perfect substitute by going to tea at any of the smart hotels. It isn't a question now of a woman being "taken." It's a question of her "going."

Exactly the same thing may be said to the woman whose husband is stingy to her. The woman who is married to a man who refuses to give her the money she needs is foolish to waste her strength and energy in whining or trying to wheedle dollars out of him. She had far better face the fact that if she is to have any money to do with as she pleases she will have to earn it herself, and go to work.

The trouble with women is that they so seldom have the courage to admit the truth to themselves about their marriages when they have made matrimonial mistakes.

It is, of course, hard on a woman when she isn't privileged to sit down at the head of the feast of domestic bliss, but she can make a very tasty dish of the crumbs of happiness that fall from the table if she has the will and the determination to do it.

Rev. Wright Made Plant Juice Tests

Galveston Minister Makes Statement That Will Benefit Many Others.

Among the many thousands of Texas people who have made personal tests of Plant Juice is Rev. C. S. Wright, pastor of the First Methodist church in Galveston, whose address is 1904 Avenue F, that city. Rev. Wright was formerly pastor of Trinity Methodist church in El Paso and has many friends here who will be interested in what he says. Rev. Wright made the following statement:

"Having suffered from stomach trouble for some time, I noticed the articles in the papers about Plant Juice and decided to try it. I did so, and am very much pleased with the results. I have not finished all the bottles, but have been so much benefited that I am sure Plant Juice will eventually cure me."

Ministers and professional men generally, as well as twenty-five percent of the people as a whole, are sufferers from stomach troubles and nervous debility. Frequently kidneys, liver and blood are deranged sympathetically. The entire nervous system is affected and morbidly morbidness and lack of vitality is the result. Indigestion, gas, bloating spots before the eyes, sleeplessness, numbness, headache, dizziness, yellow skin, pimples, blotches and twinges of rheumatism are among the symptoms of a nervous breakdown. To all who suffer from any of these symptoms there is immediate relief and a permanent cure in Plant Juice, the great new vegetable tonic. Wherever introduced it has taken immediate hold on the public and brought forth words of the highest praise from people in all walks of life. For sale at Kelly & Pollard's. (Adv.)

Teach Girls Happiness

Julie Opp Says Begin by Instructing Them in How to Be Pleasant.

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer.

"WHAT we need is a school where girls can be taught to be pleasant," said Miss Julie Opp in the course of a talk the other day.

Miss Opp was seen in El Paso last year in "The Fawn," as a co-star with her husband, William Faversham. "Yes, I think girls should be regularly taught to be pleasant. I believe it's a matter first of good health, and then a kind of mental discipline. It's certainly an art, and it is one of the most necessary things in the world would be eliminated if all women made a point of being pleasant at home."

"Of course, I think that amiability is very largely due to good health. If we were all born perfectly healthy there would be fewer excuses and no reason for much of the disagreeableness of human nature."

"Oh, I frequently get up with the wrong foot first myself, and feel that everything is wrong. Then I say to myself, 'Stop; you don't have to be disagreeable about this,' and I turn about and practice being pleasant."

"People are bringing healthier and finer characters into the world, and they are taking more pains to build up a proper physical foundation."

And as if to illustrate this, the two young members of the Faversham family, who had been allowed as a special favor to see their mother and father in "The Fawn," came in, and after a short stay, and after a short stay, after "daddy," of course. At mention of "daddy," the interview stopped suddenly, and the star's wife talked about her husband's work.

"Men are such dears," said Lady Portia Faversham, "and they're all children, aren't they?" At the same lovely maternal light came into her eyes as when she had looked at her two boys.

"How wonderful men are! Think of the marvelous heroes of the Titanic; it seems to me that the world can never go back to what it was before that example of chivalry, and that we've all been lifted up a little higher by the bravery of those men who gave up their lives with such gallant courage."

SAVES THE HAIR AND MAKES IT LIGHT-FLUFFY-BEAUTIFUL

To insure the possession of good hair two things are necessary—reasonable care and the intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide.

Hair that receives no attention but the daily combing and an occasional shampoo cannot be pretty. Dandruff forms on the scalp, the hair becomes dead, brittle, uneven and falls out. There is an entire lack of the life, luster and snap which is imparted to the hair by proper care and Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide kills the germ that causes dandruff, keeps the scalp clean and free from scale. The hair looks alive, ceases to fall out and has a gloss, beauty and luxuriance. Herpicide stops itching almost instantly.
